

Coworth-Flexlands School wins Ofsted “outstanding” accolade

Coworth-Flexlands’ Nursery and Foundation Stage has been ranked “outstanding” – the top grade – by Ofsted following its recent inspection. The Early Years department underwent a rigorous school Ofsted inspection and was judged on a range of categories.

These categories included overall effectiveness of the school, achievement and standards, quality of provision, teaching and learning, curriculum and other activities, guidance and support, organisation, leadership and management. The verdict in each case was “outstanding.”

The report found that the children at Coworth-Flexlands “relish their school day. They are relaxed, happy and demonstrate an excellent attitude towards learning.”

The School’s Head of Pre-Pre, Sue Nelson, said, “I am thrilled that the hard work and dedication of the teachers and support staff has been recognised.

“Staff, parents and governors are all passionate about children’s learning and the Ofsted Inspector was impressed with the skilful way that a rich and exciting range of activities and experiences are delivered to the children.

“We could not have achieved such an outstanding report without the vibrant and enthusiastic learners who attend out school.”
